which they have sense enough to perceive would place the French in China in much the same position as that occupied by the English in Egypt. Besides, the Peking authorities are not likely to cede Formosa to France until Admiral Courbet has been able to occupy it. China will prefer making some supreme efforts of defence before she consents to Formosa becoming French propely. She would no doubt the Mission Church, Queen's Road, will be rather pay a heavy indemnity than lose permanently an important possession on her coast, and see established there a French naval and military station. Just a suspicion is raised that reports of this kind may have been put into circulation for a purpose. Are some of the Chinese statesmen so childlike and bland that they do not know the cession of Formosa to France would excite the jealousy of certain Powers, and induce them to exert themselves to bring about a peaceable settlement of the trouble Possibly so. But Li Hung-chang, who is at Tientsin, it a pretty good in playing the cards of diplomacy. France would appear to be backing up these overtures for a settlement by sending out seven thousand more troops! Before the French and Chinese are able to come to any arrangement we fear that some more fighting must ensue, and the French must make good their footing in Formosa. Then something may be done in the way of mediation.

ADMIRAL Courbet has no doubt experienced considerable difficulty in settling the conditions on which he should deal with neutrals, and we are inclined to think he blockaded facts with regard to the savage tribes of the Formosa chiefly to avoid any contretemps which might have arisen by searching neutral vessels and possibly seizing contraband cargo in the absence of a declaration of Consul for Fo-Kien, concluded with Towar. That the Admiral has had to get spe- Ké-To, their chief. General Legendre, it cial instructions from home as to his mode of dealing with neutral vessels is shown by the following extract from a London of the Northern States during the civil war,

Admiral Courbet is at Matson, and has asked for instructions as to the treatment of neutrals. Evidently some knotty points are likely to occur, as Admiral Courbet has telegraphed to the Ministry of Marine, asking that his position towards neutrals should be more clearly defined, and pointing outseveral difficulties by which he is now con-

Lord Garmoyle is still travelling abroad, and has, it is understood, no intention of timing his return to England so that he may be placed in the witness-box; in fact there will be no defence, the whole case resolving itself into a question of damages. But in order to ensure a full amount of these the counsel for the lady intend to go right through with the case, more especially that section of it which deals with correspondence that has taken place between the fianese, the intended bridegroom, and his parents. The ladies' representatives in their second innings did not do so well as in the their lot in with the Dutch rather than be first, being all out for 87, thus leaving the Club only 86 to get to win and this they succeeded in doing for the loss of only three wickets, D'Aeth making 46 of the required amount and Hendry 22. Cricket Club were thus the winners by wickets. The fielding and bowling of the Cricket Club team were decidedly better than that of their opponents and it was owing more to that than to murdering Constable Kole at Dalston two superior batting powers that the victory was ascribable. Hendry's bowling was particularly effective.

The troubles in China are unfavourably affecting one of the most important minor industries of Marseilles, and may interfere with female heads all over Europe in a way their owners little expect. China has ceased to send hair to France. The Iraouaddy, which arrived last month from Hong Kong. brought only three bales of this interesting merchandise, and the Sindh, which arrived last week, brought but a single case. Marseilles is the principal human hair market in Europe. The imports average 80,000 kilogrammes (about 80 tons), of which fully one-half come from China. For the rest, Italy supplies 22,000, Cochin China 1,347, the English East Indies 2,000, Japan 538, Algeria 431, Turkey 98, Austria and Spain 13 kilogrammes. LOSS OF THE GUNBOAT 'WASP.'

A lamentable disaster has occurred of the north-west coast of Ireland, About three o'clock on the morning of the 22nd Sept. Her Majesty's gunboat Wasn was wrecked on the north side of Tory Island. off the coast of Donegal. Owing to there being no telegraphic communication between the island and the mainland little is known as to the circumstances or the cause of the wreck; but no doubt exists as to the magnitude of the calamity. The Wasp, which was under the command of Lieutenant Nicholls, had usually a crew of fifty-eight mon on board, and of these only six mon are stated to have been saved. In addition to the commander, the other officers, according to the Navy List, were Lieutenant King, Sub-Lieutenant Thomas S. Guppy, and Gunner John W. Kerrigan. Wasp was a composite screw gunboat, carrying four guns, of 495 tons, 470-horse power. Lieutenant King had previously served on board the gunboat Merlin in China. But few particulars of the disaster have yet been received, but some of the bodies have been washed ashere in an almost nude condition. This would tend to confirm previous surmises, and show that the vessel must have gone down instantly, and before the men who were below had time to put on any clothing. No plausible suggestion as to the cause of the calamity can yet be made. The island has a dangerous coast, and near it are currents which might put a captain who was not aware of them out of his reckoning but a lighthouse is erected on the island and, in fact, the seens of the shipwreck is within forty yards of the lighthouse. . Tory Island is about two and a-half miles long by one mile broad, and the lighthouse is on the north-west end. The north side presents a range of cliffs from 100 feet to 300 feet high. Towards the south the land slopes down, and the shore is that. are on the island about seventy families. numbering some 600 souls depending chiefly upon fishing. At periods during the autumn and winter, when fresh winds prevail, the island is inaccessible from the mainland for several days, and frequently weeks, the heavy rolling sea through the South rendering it impossible for even steamers to make the passage. Another casualty occurred on the Donegal coast, in the vicinity of the wreck of the Wasp, and only a few hours before the gunboat was lost. A boat, containing three fishermen from Inishfree Island was capsized, and two of the occupants were drowned. The Valiant arrived in Lough Swills yesterday (Sept. 25th) with the six survivors of the gunboat Wasp on board. They have almost recovered from their injuries. which appear not to have been of a serious character. They are nominally under arrest, but are allowed full liberty in the vessel. The Valuat-will proceed to Ports mouth, where it is expected the courtmartial will be held. The accounts of the disaster, which are still incomplete, state that the Wast struck off the north-west end of Tory Island while trying to weather The wreck has entirely disappeared having sunk in deep water, and no bodies have been washed up. The survivors state that no efforts of their own could have saved them if they had not been washed ashore. THE MASSACRE AT MANDALAY.

We give below the details of the massacre at Mandalay, which we briefly reported this day week, and which was then described as a jail outbreak. How far that description was from the truth the following accounts, both given us by eye-witnesses, will show. The Burmese Government, feeling alarm-that the Mengoon Prince had left Pon-

Finding themselves fired upon from all sides. they tried to break the fence and get out. At this crisis the Tinedah gave orders to set fire to the jail at the East corner, and from the Toung-win Mingyee's house the musketry fire was kept up. A DAY IN BALT LAKE CITY.

Ogden, September 11th, 1884. At Ogdon, the first thing which suggests. to you that you have struck a new land and people, is the poculiar salutation heard on all sides: 'Good morning, Brother Rastus:' "good morning sister;" how do you do, elder, is the form of greeting with many hand shakes. Leaving Ogdon, the train whirls through a beautiful valley, dotted with farm-houses in every direction, and all with a general appearance of thrift. Every- and Nevada Railway for a trip to the lake where as far as the eye can reach, the to enjoy a bath in the cool of the evening. country is covered with trees. Every The lake is twenty miles distant and the house is surrounded with a grove and the fare for the round trip fifty cents. Two orchards are laden with fruit. A pleasant trains a day are run for bathers, one early run of an hour and we reach Salt Lake in the morning and the other late in the City. Located as it is, remote from the evening. The patronage is immense. The center of civilization, it has a civilization of road is a narrow-gauge and runs directly its own. Every convenience which the west across the valley, reaching Black Rock busy, industry being one of the greatest very smooth and the ride enjoyable. At virtues of these people.

A BEAUTIFUL CITY. The appearance of the city is beautiful. The sidewalks are lined with locust, apple, cherry, white and black mulberry trees, the twenty-five cents. There are three hundred fruit of the latter being made into preserves. Along the outer edge of the sidewalk a stream of clear mountain water rushes like a small torrent. Every few blocks there are fountains with drinking temperature, clear as crystal and the bottom cups without chains. The streets are wide sandy. One cannot do any breast swimming, and clean. Street-cars run all over the owing to the extreme density of the water town, the fare being ten cents. Instead of which throws the feet to the surface, but a running to certain streets as in other cities, the cry is: 'Here's your car for the First back, when one can skim over the water ward. This way for the Thirteenth ward. The carryalls are numerous, but the drivers are hardly so pushing as those of other cities. They, of course, importune you for patronage, but not offensively. On the left after leaving the depot we

It is built in the shape of an elipse, being 250 feet long by 150 feet in width. The main floor is on an incline, and a gallery runs clear around; the gallery is supported by brick columns on the outside about three feet in thickness and ten feet in length and ten feet apart. Around the whole length of the building, between nearly every column, there is an exit the full width of the space between the columns, being about forty in all. The pulpits, or stands, of which, including the Bishop's stand, there are four, are located in the west

It is said that a Mormon, though he be ever so oxthodox in his belief, if he be addicted to smoking, drinking or immoral habits, he will not be permitted to enter

ERIGHAM YOUNG'S HOUSES. Further up the street is the famous Lion House of Brigham Young, a plain stone house standing back from the street, inside of a stone wall with a lion lying at rest over the door. Next comes the Beehive House one of Brigham Young's houses, so called from a beenive over the door. To the east of President Young's house is the Eagle Gate, the main entrance to the city, made of two stone arches, extending across a narrow street with an eagle with outstretched wings and beak standing guard on the top. In the rear on the next street is the grave of the famous Apostle, located in the southeastern corner of a large lot, without any ornament except the green sward. monument marks the spot except an iron railing enclosing it. The inhabitants point with pride to the running water along the street: to the canal: to the geographical location of the city; to the very plan of the city laid out with beautiful, wide streets at perfect right angles, all starting from the Temple, running to the four points of the compast, and they tell you Brigham Young is to thank for it all. Across the street from the Lion House is the mansion of Fresident Taylor, built in the modern style. THE CO-OPERATIVE STORE. In the business portion of the town the first point of interest is the co-operative store established by Brigham Young in 1868. It is in the nature of a limited joint stock individual can own being limited to twenty at $5 each. The stock, which is composed of every conceivable article, is sold at fair advance on the original cost. There are no fluctuations in the prices, the last sack of flour being sold at the same price as if there were ten thousand in stock. The building has a frontage of about 125 feet three stories high, with a depth of 150 feet. An army of clerks are in attendance. Everything seems to be mathodical and systematic. On the buildings in every direction the letters Z. C. M. L. meaning 'Zion Co-operative Mercantile Institution, are to be seen, and one would readily suppose that no one else would be able to carry on business, but this would be a mistake, as the number of stores on every side without | Mast Head. these letters testify. Ice cream saloons. sods-water stands, lemonade and butter-milk stands are met with every few steps, and all are well patronized. Saloons also abound, but their habitues give them an uninviting aspect. There is one brewery, a large brick structure, situated on the bench. There are churches of various denominations; an Odd Fellows hall and ed to the letters in the table of Flags. numerous other public buildings. The women of Salt Lake City will compare favorably with the women of any other part of the world. They are pleasant in manner and speech. They are testefully and neatly. dressed. One cause of the antipathy of the Mormon to the Gentile is the fact that the young women take to the Gentiles with such warmth that the Mormons naturally feel jealous, for they see their flocks almost abandoning them, and they use the most watchful care to guard their girls against the influence of the non-believers.
